

Apr. 10, 2003

HOME

LOCAL

SPORTS

BUSINESS

EDITORIALS

TEMPO

ENTERTAINMENT

CLASSIFIED

ARCHIVE

SEARCH

TODAY'S ENQUIRER

Front Page

▶ Local News

Sports

Business

Editorials

Tempo

Travel

Health

Technology

Weather

Back Issues

Search

Subscribe

SPORTS

Bears

Bengals

High School

Reds

Xavier

VIEWPOINTS

Jim Borgman

Columnists

Readers' views

ENTERTAINMENT

Movies

Dining

Horoscopes

Lottery Results

Local Events

Video Games

CINCINNATI.COM

Giveaways

Maps/Directions

Send an E-Postcard

Coupons

Visitor's Guide

Sunday, February 23, 2003

Free speech - as long as it's politically correct

map

Ratemyprofessors.com is a place where students can say what they think about boring, incompetent or obnoxious college professors, without fear of retaliation. Here's a sample:

"Not only is the book a better teacher, it also has a better personality."

"BORING! But I learned there are 137 tiles on the ceiling."

"Bring a pillow."

"Your pillow will need a pillow."

"She hates you already."

Funny. But what if it's no joke? What if a student columnist writes something that ticks off the faculty - and he gets fired?

That's what happened to Aaron Sanders at Miami University. He wrote a column accusing the French department chairman and a faculty member of pushing obscenity in classes. He said some students in a French class were offended by the movie Ridicule, which showed a close-up of one man urinating on another. He asked why professors are not held accountable.

Instead, he was the one fired when the French department chairman complained to the Miami Student faculty adviser, and the adviser urged the student editor to dump Sanders.

Something similar happened at the Harvard Business School recently, when faculty members cited a student editor for violating their "community standards" speech code with an editorial cartoon.

The Foundation for Individual Rights in Education defended the student, and the dean of the Harvard Business School publicly apologized.

Now FIRE, a nonprofit, nonpartisan group based in Philadelphia, is "absolutely" eager to defend Sanders, according to CEO Thor Halvorssen. "This is an astonishing case," he said. "It shows utter

Updated Every 30 Minutes

AP TOP HEADLINE NEWS

- U.S. Marines Battle Holdouts in Baghdad
- Bush Speaks to Iraqi People in TV Address
- Crowd Kills Two Islamic Clerics in Iraq
- Powell, Turkey Reach Accord on Kurds
- Arabs World Stunned by Baghdad's Fall
- Hong Kong Sets New SARS Quarantines
- British, French to End Concorde Service
- Greenspan Praises Resilience of Economy
- Dow Falls 13, Nasdaq Inches Up 1
- Rain Postpones First Round of Masters

NATIONAL NEWS

- Bush Speaks to Iraqi People in TV Address
- U.S. to Focus Military Action on N. Iraq
- Powell, Turkey Reach Accord on Kurds
- Many Iraqi-Americans Jubilant, Relieved
- FBI Chief Decries Espionage Discovery
- _____

CLASSIFIEDS

Jobs

Cars

Homes

Obituaries

General

Place an ad

HELP

Feedback

Subscribe

Search

Survey

contempt for freedom of speech."

The Miami Student Senate introduced a resolution this week supporting Sanders and condemning censorship.

The campus paper now has no conservative columnists, Sanders said, although it has liberals who regularly bash President Bush.

Faculty adviser Cheryl Heckler and Jill Inkrott, the student editor who fired Sanders, insist he was not fired for his views, but the way he expresses them.

And that's good enough for the Miami administration. When I asked for a comment from President James Garland, I was referred to spokesman Richard Little, who defended the firing by repeating what Heckler said.

Little said the administration would not get involved because the student newspaper is independent.

I can't see how that keeps the administration from expressing concern about free expression on campus, or faculty members who intimidate students. But Little said the editor has a right to fire Sanders, "even if she had a disagreement with the columnist" over his views.

I'm in favor of independent student papers. But that sounds like free speech for liberals only. Imagine the faculty outrage if Sanders had been fired for opposing the war against Iraq.

Michael P. McNamara, MU Class of '98, and Brad Beckett, Class of '94, said it sounds familiar. Beckett said he started the Miami Review in 1992 because of "school censorship and control, and the fact that we were tired of the overboard liberal bias of the school-controlled paper."

McNamara said the Miami Student would not publish his conservative columns, so he wrote for the Review.

"The faculty claims to promote tolerance and diversity, but they are quick to shut down those who have divergent viewpoints from the politically correct and liberally acceptable rhetoric and propaganda being taught," he said.

Halvorssen says FIRE defends all ideologies, but most free-speech abuses are predictable. "You don't get punished for annoying Christians, Republicans or white males," he said. "It's a double standard."

"There is a ferocious assault on freedom of speech on college campuses," he said. "It should be a national scandal."

It's already simmering on the Miami campus. And it sounds like FIRE is about to turn up the heat.

E-mail pbronson@enquirer.com or call 768-8301.

- U.S. Marines Battle Holdouts in Baghdad
- Security Council Balks at Postwar Plans
- EU Parliament OKs Embryo Creation Ban
- Britain, Ireland Delay N. Ireland Accord
- N. Korea: Strong Military Deters U.S.
- N. Korea Treaty Withdrawal Concerns U.N.

BUSINESS NEWS

- IMF, World Bank Ready to Help Rebuild Iraq
- Extentions Can Reduce Tax Return Errors
- Retailers Report Disappointing March Sales
- New York Sues Wal-Mart Over Toy Guns
- Treasury Bond Prices Fall

SPORTS NEWS

- Rain Postpones First Round of Masters
- Martha Burk Loses Masters Protest Appeal
- James Gets \$10M Policy for All-Star Game
- Baseball Hall Cancels 'Bull Durham' Event
- IOC to Athens Organizers: No More Delays
- USOC Predicts Revenue Shortfall of
-

