Harassment

Washington University advocates a positive and safe environment for its students, faculty, and staff and does not tolerate harassment of any kind. Harassment is defined as unwelcome and objectively offensive conduct that (a) has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or educational environment, (b) is directed at a particular individual or individuals, and (c) is abusive or severely humiliating. Such behavior is subject to disciplinary action.

The Office of Residential Life refers all incidents of harassment to the appropriate office(s) for further investigation and resolution.

Room Condition Report

Your Room Condition Report (RCR) is a form that you as a student in Residential Life Managed housing complete. It describes the physical condition of your room when you move in in August and when you move out in May. This year, your room condition report will be completed online via your WashU Housing Portal.

Residential Life staff have gone through and inspected the condition of your room before you arrived, now it is your turn! As a resident living in the space, it is IMPORTANT you also inspect the condition of your room. Your RCR will become available to you once you are checked in (received key from a res life staff member).

We highly recommend that you go and complete the form right away. We use this form to fairly assess damages, if any, at the end of the year. Below are step by step instructions.

Please note: If your housing assignment indicates the letter "es
